

A14 Cambridge to Huntingdon improvement scheme

Archaeology Open Day at Mill Common, Huntingdon
10am – 3pm, Saturday 8 December

Excavations begin at Mill Common, November 2018

Come along and see the archaeology excavation currently taking place as part of Highways England's A14 Cambridge to Huntingdon improvement scheme.

This event is taking place from 10am to 3pm on Saturday 8 December at Mill Common, Huntingdon*.

Free guided tours of the site will be available every 30 minutes from 10am – 12noon and 1pm until 2.30pm. Visitors should wear stout shoes - boots and warm clothing on site.

Archaeologists are excavating along the route of the Pathfinder Link Road into Huntingdon. This is revealing some Romano-British and Medieval remains including; a possible Roman Road, ditches and pits. Finds so far include; Romano-British, Medieval and Post Medieval pottery, animal bones and evidence for later activity and we are also hoping to find evidence from the Civil War and the Early Medieval period.

Visitors to the site on Mill Common (opposite Huntingdon Bus Station) will be able to see some of the finds so far, meet some of the archaeologists and find out more about the excavations along the A14.
